

a promise to people who would like to buy air conditioning

When you call the TRANE COMFORT CORPS, you get the services of a professional, residential and light commercial air conditioning and heating company. We have fused all the separate elements of the business — system design, installation, service — into one organization determined that every customer will be pleased with our results.

For instance, we promise to treat your home or business with respect, and do our job with minimum disturbance.

We promise accuracy: no guess work. Our estimator measures and figures everything that can affect cooling loads. He'll answer your questions frankly and fully, and help you make a wise investment.

We promise you a clear and detailed quotation, setting out exactly what you are buying, what it costs and when we'll deliver.

Our TRANE COMFORT CORPS installation specialists work fast. They promise neatness, too, taking care not to chip paint or track up carpets. Their clean-up is thorough.

We promise to call back to make sure your system is working the way we said it would. And that you're happy with everything we did.

If you choose to join our optional preferred service program, we promise to return regularly to clean and check your system. Like an automobile, it runs better that way.

Most of all, we promise you the security of knowing you're purchasing comfort equipment manufactured by a nationally-known air conditioning and heating company: Trane.

These TRANE COMFORT CORPS standards of professionalism are set by The Trane Company itself. As an independent business belonging to the TRANE COMFORT CORPS, we must promise to maintain these standards; in essence, to keep the promises we've made you here.

If you're meaning to buy air conditioning or heating for your home or business, call us in. Even if you're just thinking about it, we're happy to talk air conditioning any time.
